CORRIDORS OF POWER MK2
(Apologies to ~~R~~ Spike Milligan)

- 1) Dave Rose. Leaps up and down ^{80m} pitches in one bound. Needs no caving light due to presence of sun in arid regions. Talks to God regularly.
- 2) George Hostford. Climbs 80m pitches hand over hand. Has flashlight only slightly less powerful than sun. Talks to God from public call boxes.
- 3) Richard Gregson. Gets other people to descend 80m pitches for him by throwing his prusik bag down them. ^{His} Light works. Talks to Clive Westlake.
- 4) John Singleton. Ignores 80m pitches and spends 3 hours hammering down scrotulous tight rifts. Breaks other people's lights. Talks to Clive Westlake but is not understood due to Lancs dialect.
- 5) Bill Stead. Light doesn't work so abseils down 80m pitch over 'tectons, bolts and anything else that happens to be there. Talks to himself.
- 6) Graham Naylor. Tells other people to go down ~~other~~ 80m pitches as he is GOD. Cannot talk.

Dear Dave,

I have been mulling over your idea of setting an example to the chaps by flaying alive Young Hostford. While I agree that we need an example to set the men I rather think that this is not such a good plan. The fellow has deerskin tough skin and would probably blunt the only sharp knife, and how would we then cut up the pemmikan?

I rather think it would be better to use the method of the Froggie Legionaries which is to bury the chap up to his neck in sand and then ride a cavalry charge over him. Or was it the arabs? The only problems that I can envisage are that the ground is too hard and we have no horses. True British ingenuity should win through though. We could tie the fellow down to the rocks and drive a herd of goats over the damned fellow. In order to make the goats more interested in the scrubby private, we had this beaver bring you a tub of jam, ^{with} which I suggest you liberally smear him.

On the other hand, if you feel that food shortages require that we might have to eat Hostford, feed him the jam beforehand.

I leave this to your discretion.

Trust Margaret and the children are well

Yours ever

Rickie.
